

JUDY MORAN RESUME

JUDY MORAN is a Senior Public Art Project Manager at the San Francisco Arts Commission where she has worked since 1997. At the Arts Commission she has successfully completed a major light rail transit art project, the Third Street Light Rail Project, Phase I, for which she managed the design, fabrication and integration of several artworks into each of 28 stations. Currently, she is managing Phase II of the Third Street Light Rail Project, the Central Subway, for which she has just completed an Arts Master Plan. She also continues to manage the Art on Market Street Program, a year-round temporary public projects program that includes a rotating kiosk poster series and public events on Market Street, San Francisco's main thoroughfare. In addition, she is overseeing the Branch Library Improvement Program, for which she is also managing public art projects for several branches, and is working on several Recreation and Park art projects.

Previous to working at the San Francisco Arts Commission, Ms Moran was Artist Residency Program Director at Villa Montalvo Center for the Arts in Saratoga, CA, an international multidisciplinary artist residency program, and was Executive Director of Public Art Works in San Rafael, CA, an organization that commissioned temporary and permanent public art projects throughout the Bay Area and sponsored educational programs. In the 1980s Moran was Co-Director of San Francisco's nationally recognized New Langton Arts, presenting contemporary art in a wide variety of media, including exhibitions, video, performance, literature, and music. She also served as Project Director of a one-year research and planning phase for a national visual arts touring program for small visual arts organizations, administered by the National Association of Artists Organizations (NAAO) and funded by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Pew Charitable Trusts. Moran has taught at San Francisco State University and the San Francisco Arts Institute in San Francisco, and JFK University in Orinda, CA.
