Clarifying Remaining Business Closure Day at the City of Oakland

Friday, May 3 will be a normal day of operation for the City; Last business closure will be Friday, June 14

Oakland, CA — In June 2012, as part of the mid-cycle budget deliberations for the FY 2011-13 two-year budget, the Oakland City Council decided to eliminate one of the 12 mandatory business closure days that had been established in June 2011 to help address a multi-million budget shortfall. The FY 2012-13 Adopted Budget passed by City Council in June 2012 had 11 mandatory business closure days instead of the 12 originally proposed.

As a result, Friday, May 3, will be a regular day of work for City staff and a normal day of operation for the City of Oakland. The one remaining mandatory business closure day for FY 2012-13 is Friday, June 14.

An updated calendar through June 30, 2013, is posted on the City's website at: <http://www2.oaklandnet.com/OAK037440>.
