

Reflections of Healing

Brett Cook Installation Proposal
DeFremery Park, Oakland California, October, 2013

- Reposition perceptions of where art takes place, who art is for, who are viable audiences, and how one experiences art
- Develop new vocabulary for what art is, what social practice is, what community engagement is, what “green” is, what partnership is.
- Add value through non-hierarchical collaborations, where organizations forge a bond to do work - such as fundraising and programming - together, thereby creating new value through new relationships, new process, and new partnerships.
- Inspire innovations via these collaborations, requiring creative approaches to problem -solving.
- Model and Grow a creative ecosystem, because after organizations and institutions have made their investment in such community building work - whether monetary or otherwise - they will likely want to continue to grow their equity in it.
