

Community Workshop #5: Draft Alternatives

Thursday, October 1, 2009

6:30 p.m. – 9:00 p.m.

Fruitvale-San Antonio Senior Center, Oakland

This is the fifth in a series of community workshops to develop a Specific Plan for Oakland's Central Estuary waterfront. Tonight's workshop will begin with a presentation of the key themes and important elements of three land use and circulation alternatives for the Plan Area that were developed based on feedback from earlier community workshops. The "open house" component of tonight's meeting will give you the opportunity to ask questions about the development and analysis of the draft alternatives.

6:30	Sign-in
6:40 – 6:50	Welcome and Introduction Eric Angstadt, City of Oakland
6:50 – 7:25	Presentation: Introduction to the Draft Alternatives Tim Rood, CD+A
7:25 – 7:45	Large Group Questions and Answers Surlene Grant, Envirocom Communications Strategies
7:45 – 9:00	Open House

What's Next?

In November, the sixth public workshop will focus on identifying a preferred alternative for the Plan Area. An "alternatives report" with detailed analysis of the three alternatives will be available on the project website at the end of the month. Please take the time between tonight's meeting and the next workshop to familiarize yourself with the draft alternatives—think about which alternative, or pieces of various alternatives speak to your vision for the Central Estuary Area.
