She stated that the Henry Robinson decided to change to this demographic. She stated that transitional housing has a low outcome rate and one of the contributing factors is if one lives in one place for 18-24 months, the resident can get dependent on the program. She stated that they focus on helping the residents living in the hotel move out as quickly as possible into permanent housing. She stated when a person moves into housing, the program still monitors the individual for 6 months. She stated that the majority of the participants are African American and active or recurrent substance abuse. She stated that 45% of the residents were deemed by the federal government to be able bodied and can work. She stated that the participants are connected to the Behavioral Health Care Services (BHCS) for wrap around services. She stated that BHCS is an Alameda County government funded program. M. She stated that they help the resident's access residential substance abuse treatment. Many participants may not want to go to the residential treatments and are offered other options such as AA. She stated some participants don't even contemplate their own sobriety. She stated that 16% of the participants are already employed when they come in for services, 42% have SSI, 52% come in with nothing or general assistance. She stated most of the participants are born and raised in Oakland even though this program is Alameda County wide, anyone can access the program. She stated that they have been prioritizing the homeless encampments. She stated they have participants with chronic conditions such as depression and they have not seen a doctor, estranged families, recent relationship ended, and alcohol and drug use. She stated that they have been in operation for 3 years. In the first 6 months of operation they served 117 people and they achieved their goal of 80% of the participants left the program. The next year they served 268 people, but their outcome went down to 70% and the duration of stay was 5 ½ months. In 2015-

2016, because of the housing crisis, more people participated in the program and the duration of stay was longer. She stated that in the last year, they have had the best performance to date serving 274 people where 85% came from the streets and the encampment population. The average duration of stay was 7 months and 86% went to permanent housing. She stated that 90% of participants that went to permanent housing were able to keep their housing. She stated that their program does not have vouchers. They do have some flexible funds through Alameda County where they can help the participants pay their rent if they fall behind.
