Homicide Suspect Convicted in 2012 Murder

Oakland, CA — On Friday January 24, 2014, the Alameda County District Attorney's office announced the conviction of Remon McDaniel, 38, of first-degree murder for the 2012 homicide of Isaac White. On January 4, 2012, Isaac White was fatally shot outside of his home.

The Oakland Police Department would like to credit the community, the media and investigators who worked together to help identify Remon McDaniel as responsible for that fatal shooting. This conviction is representative of how our community's assistance helps investigators bring closure and justice for families of violent crime.

Background: On January 25, 2012, the Oakland Police Department released a photo of wanted homicide suspect Remon McDaniel in a public safety advisory. Local media featured the photo prominently in their coverage of the murder. On January 31, 2012, OPD in partnership with the U.S. Marshals announced McDaniel's arrest.
